OBJECTIVE

I consider myself a creative person and I think that developing software is something in between being a creator and an artisan.

Product Development is something I'm pretty passionate about too and being able to be part of the team that develops that idea is something I found interesting.

EXPERIENCE

Project Leader & Full-stack Developer (2018 > Present)

I'm the Project leader in the development team at the Company I'm working for. We envisioned an app that could help any small to mid-size company to manage all the billing process, stock and client data, so they only have to worry about the important things.

The whole app is running in a LAMP server infrastructure (Linux, Apache, MySQL and Python). All the server configuration and dev-ops are run by me, as well as a big part of the code of the app.

Back-end Developer (2015 > 2018)

Started as a back-end developer in PHP around 2015. It was a small company and I was the only developer, but it doesn't mean that I had time to get bored.

By that time, I developed a "framework" for a congress group that wanted to use the app ever time they had a new congress to celebrate.
